

A primary key is a field in a table which uniquely identifies each row/record in the table. Primary Keys must contain unique values and cannot contain null values. Each table can only have one primary key which can consist of single or multiple columns. The primary key is important because it provides the means to distinguish one tuple from all the others.