The difference between getStaticProps and getServerSideProps is that getServerSideProps fetches data on each request for server-side rendering which allows for dynamic content generation for each request. On the other hand, getStaticProps fetches data at build time for static generation which allows for static site generation with pre-rendered data.